

Mom's _____ Mother's Day

It was a _____ and _____ Sunday morning, and Donna and Jason were going to make a _____ breakfast in bed for their Mom because it was Mother's Day. The _____ plan was to make _____, _____ waffles topped with _____ cream and _____ fruit with _____ orange juice.

First, the kids looked for the waffle mix. They took all of the _____ ingredients like flour, sugar, and all sorts of _____ spices out of the cupboard. Finally, there was only one item left in the cupboard and it was pancake mix.

They decided they would have to make the _____ waffles from scratch and pulled out all of the recipe books from the _____ shelf. They found a few _____ recipes for waffles and decided to go with the easiest one.

The kids added flour, eggs, sugar, and oil, only making a _____ mess and getting a little on themselves. They heated up the waffle iron and only overfilled it once (or twice). The first waffle was _____ and the second waffle was _____ and some of the waffles were only a couple of squares. They picked the _____ ones for Mom.

They cut up _____ strawberries, _____ bananas, and _____ raspberries. They topped the waffles with _____ cream and their _____ fruit. Then they poured a cup of _____ orange juice. They put everything on a tray with a _____ rose, cut fresh from the rose bush outside.

They rushed up the _____ staircase into their parents' room and joyfully sang out " _____ Mother's Day! We love you!!"
